

PRESS RELEASE AUGUST 2014

Contact Belinda Hunt on 07951 579398
belinda.mardi@gmail.com

STORIES FROM VOICES PAST

DEAD MEN'S TEETH ~ TEN PENNY PAMPHLETS

Jamie Rhodes

Illustrated by Christa Leask

FEAST YOURSELF ON DEAD MEN'S TEETH...

FREE PENNY PAMPHLET of title story in this exciting collection funded by the Arts Council and in collaboration with the British Library. From stories inspired by the British Library memoir archives from 1750-1900.

Throughout the collection, I have used the archive memoir material as a starting point. Some stories led me to utilise details more exactly than others, where I took on a more creative and fanciful approach to explore ideas that the memoirs raised for me as a twenty-first century reader.

My aim in this fiction is to entertain and to spread a little light on the wealth of material in the British Library archives and to explore how my craft as a writer can bring alive a not altogether impossible re-imagining of our past.

In the tradition of Dickens and other pamphleteers, I offer this book not just as a whole collection in eBook and hard copy but also each story individually in pamphlet form as eBooks. Inflation dictates that the penny pamphlet is now the pound pamphlet, but perhaps those of you dipping into these fictional memoirs might take your pick.

For more information on Dead Men's Teeth and our Ten Penny Pamphlets, getting published, entering our free writing competitions, improving your writing skills or purchasing our eBooks or hard copy books, please visit www.mardibooks.com